TAA compliance enables the U.S. government and educational institutions to procure products produced or “substantially transformed” within the United States or designated countries. Kendall Howard is a USA-based company commissioning major components from US and TAA-compliant international sources. This makes it possible for organizations to honor GSA Schedule contracts, IDIQs (Indefinite Delivery Indefinite Quantity), and most DoD procurement agreements on an ongoing basis with quality assurance. Every step - from initial designing through manufacturing assembly up until testing and support is provided by domestic resources in full accordance with set standards.

At Kendall Howard, we are firmly committed to providing high-quality products that surpass the standards of the Trade Agreements Act. Our stringent quality control department ensures all components and parts used have been sourced from approved countries or U.S.-based manufacturers, providing our customers receive only top-tier product solutions.
